A fresh start for disaster survivors in their long-term recovery

With House in a Box™, families affected by disasters receive the essential furniture and household items they need to restore stability and dignity—one home at a time.

Transforming Disaster Recovery with Innovation, Efficiency, and Hope

A Fresh Start After Disaster

House in a Box™ provides families who have lost everything with brand-new furniture and household essentials, restoring dignity and stability after disaster strikes.

Innovative, Scalable Relief

Starting at just $3,600 for a family of four, our program is designed to scale, ensuring families of all sizes receive essential furnishings to rebuild their homes and lives.

Cutting-Edge Solutions for Faster Recovery

By integrating blockchain technology and a custom kit personalized for each home, House in a Box™ streamlines procurement, prevents duplication, and ensures last-mile delivery for the most vulnerable survivors.

House in a Box™

Through a Disaster Case Management process, families in need are identified and referred to the program, ensuring efficient and equitable distribution of resources without duplication of benefits. Each family receives a complete home setup, including beds, linens, cookware, dressers, silverware, and more—offering a fresh start after disaster strikes.

- House in a Box™ operates best when paired with a Disaster Case Management program where survivors are evaluated and vetted at the local level.
- DSC will train and guide local leadership, foundations, long-term recovery groups, and volunteer agencies.
- Applications are submitted from the local counterpart to the national DSC office.
- DSC reviews and fulfills orders, as well as managing logistics from start to finish.

House in a Box™ is more than just furniture; it's a foundation for recovery and renewed hope. Experience the human side of disaster relief through a program designed to restore dignity and stability. With a seamless, efficient process, House in a Box™ ensures families receive the essential furnishings they need to rebuild—turning empty spaces into homes filled with comfort and resilience.

ALEX SMITH

Traditional disaster relief models have struggled to meet the evolving needs of survivors, as needs change from day to day. DSC is pioneering a new approach where survivors direct their own recovery. Missing opportunities to learn from previous crises due to the frequency of new disasters, DSC is addressing this issue with the use of ESTHER's cutting-edge technology and data syst

How ESTHER Works

1. Survivors register via the online portal or through caseworker-led intake.
2. Once verified, a pre-paid Visa card is issued and linked to their account.
3. Cards can be pre-staged for rapid distribution or mailed for long-term recovery needs.
4. Funds are restricted to essential goods, ensuring responsible spending.
5. DSC monitors transactions and collects data to optimize future disaster response strategies.
